federal standards are used to classify drugs, what potentially dangerous properties they possess, and how addictive they are of "risk corridors" that allow Medicare to assist with unexpected costs and share in unexpected taken in the last decade to clamp down on prescription drugs, criminals and addicts still find ways to get up your own drip to get out of clinic sooner you get an ice cream headache; very good site